STRONG'S FLAG WAVED ON HIGH.

Guardians of the City's Play Grounds Praised for Their Fine Showing.

Central Park was in her best Spring suit this morning when the gray-coated guardians turned out in annual parade and to be reviewed on the Mail by the Mayor and Park Commissioners.

Last night's showers had brought the leaver out in all their verdant beauty; the posy beds were brilliant with bright ms, and the day was clear and beautiful, though rather warm.

Thousands of people had gathered under the trees in the great public play-ground to witness this annual show, and what they saw was well worth the

The 290 officers and men in the service were all out, either in the line of march or on duty at the music stands in the Mail. The men were in full dress uniform, consisting of Spring frock coats and trousers of gray, Summer helmets for the patrolmen and roundsmen and peaked caps for the captain and sergeants.

where they marched down that broad and leaf-canopied stretch from north to the Secretary of the Examining Board, at the Custom-House.

A little before 10 o'clock carriages drove up to the south end of the Mall. They contained Mayor Strong, Corporation Counsel Scott, Register Levy, President David King, ir., and Commissioners G. G. Havens, R. B. Roosevelt, A. B. G. G. Havens, R. B. Roosevelt, A. B. Julliard, of the Park Board.

They passed up the Mail and took seats on the stand erected in front of the great on the stand erected in front of the reviewing stand on the west side of the Mail.

The appearance of the gray-coated Park army was received with cheers and hand-clapping by 5,000 people.

Capt. Collins, major of the parade, marched his command to a point where the color-bearers in the middle of the line stood opposite the Mayor's stand.

"Company front" was presented, and the Mayor's messenger unfuried the Mayor's flag over him.

After a salute from the police by tipping the helmet with white-gloved hands, the Mayor descended from the stand and, arm-in-arm with Capt. Collins, and followed by the Park Commissioners, Corporation Counsel and Register, passed down the front and up between the open lines in inspection to musical selections from "Carmen."

They then returned to the grand stand and reviewed the men as they went through the evolutions of the police manual.

The battalion was made up as follows:

These unattractive heaps would sometimes remain an inconvenience and an evesores for months until the work on the new buildings had progressed far enough to admit of the bricks being used sgain in the work.

The new rule will necessitate the immediate removal of old material, and the streets will hereafter present a more orderly appearance during the progress of building operations.

An illustration of how the new rule will operate may be seen at Broadway and Prince street, where the work of tearing down the old Metropolitan Hotel and Niblo's Garden is in progress.
